It is evident, however, that the enjoyment of the opportunities of mature life will not have been increased for those whose school geography was merely a study of words in a book, or of names on a map, rather than of the meaningful facts of the world. Hence the intellectual no less than the practical value of geography will depend largely on the excellence with which it is taught. THE RELATION OF GEOGRAPHY TO THE SCIENCES. By Herbert M. Wilson, United States Geological Survey. We are passing through a period in which methods of business, of education, and of government are rapidly developing. From the centralization of many diverse units under one administration, as in the change from the college to the university, from the company to the syndicate, from the kingdom to the empire, there results a broadening of interests. But this very aggregation of interests and power gives opportunity for, and demands, more detailed study and more careful management of the component parts. The small college, at which only a few general branches of learning were taught, is giving place to the greater university, in which all branches of learning are represented and yet the minutest detail is taught in each specialty. The individual owner of the blast furnace or steel-rail mill is being replaced by the great...
