The notes are endorsed by the president of the company in his individual capacity as sole owner of a manufacturing plant in Connecticut; the balance were issued to creditors for merchandise; they are due February 15. Claims-Amount compensated by reserve is subject to lawsuits for collection; this is true, in fact, of the whole amount of the claims account. Counsel reports the basis to be of a doubtful value from the legal standpoint. Accounts Receivable-Amount compensated by reserve is still in doubt, with the presumption against collection. The control account conceals, besides, $5,000 of advances to a promoter operating in China. This may be lost. Notes Receivable-Contain a $3,000 note given by a former employee of the company, to cover theft of material; the note is due in February, 1919, but information is at...
