Excerpt: .the adjacent plains; and manifestly has no connection whatever with the precipitous regions south of Kflrn Surtabeh. The town is of some size, and tolerably well built. We saw no remains of antiquity, except a few sepulchral excavations and some cisterns. We were admitted to the top of a Sheikh s house, in order to take bearings. The house was built around a small court, in which cattle and horses were stabled. Thence a stone staircase led up to the roof of the house proper; on which, at the northwest and southeast corners, were high single rooms like towers, with a staircase inside leading to the top. In my former work the question was suggested,<sup>3</sup> whether perhaps this Tulluzah may not be the representative of the 1 In April 1844, my companion found 28. Tfimmon 80.
