Language, Memory, and Identity in the Middle East: The Case for Lebanon

By Franck Salameh

Lexington Books. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 318 pages. Dimensions: 8.9in. x 5.9in. x 1.0in. Since the Wests very early flirtations with the modern Near East, and especially in the past 100 years of East-West relations, there has been considerable difficulty in understanding and defining the Middle East, the Arab world, pan-Arabism, Arab nationalism, and Middle Eastern identities in general. The Western impulse of conflating national identity with language, state, and ethnicity often subsuming Arabic language into Arab ethnicity has contributed to this misunderstanding and misreading of the region. For, while the Middle East can be accurately referred to by way of the generic Arab world label, the appellation itself is a misleading oversimplification that conceals an inherent diversity and multiplicity of Middle Eastern cultures, ethnicities, languages, and nationalities. And while there is certainly a dominant Arab ethnos, there are also significant numbers of Middle Eastern peoples and nationalities with historical memories and ethno-cultural bonds that challenge the dominant Arabist paradigm. Language, Memory, and Identity in the Middle East proposes a new reading of modern Middle Eastern history and suggests alternate solutions to the regions problems. The book is an attempt to rehabilitate and bring back to the fore of Middle East Studies...
