John D. Dingell (acting chairman) presiding. Mr. Dingell. The committee will come to order. Today we are conducting the first of the open hearings on oceanography before this subcommittee in the 2d session of the 87th Congress. Our subcommittee has before it legislation introduced and referred to us in the first session of this Congress; namely H.R. 4276. Exhaustive hearings were held on this bill in the last session. The position of the administration as expressed by all executive departments and agencies with respect to this legislation was that no legislation was necessary since the Committee on Oceanography of the Federal Council for Science and Technology was doing an outstanding job of coordination of our national program for oceanography. From the aspect of legislative oversight of executive performance within our jurisdiction, the following general questions will be asked of the Council through its Oceanographic Committee: 1. What have you done? 2. What are you doing? and 3. What are you going to do? These questions are of sufficient breadth to ascertain the answers to the subquestions: What, why, when, and how so understandable to the news media of our country. It is with great pleasure that I welcome our first witness Hon. James H. Wakelin, Jr., Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Research and...
